About EMPSi

Do you have a passion for visiting and recreating on public lands and waters? Do you want to help solve the most pressing challenges facing our natural resources and the people who depend on them? What is the right balance of OHV use with hiking and horseback riding in Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument? How can the Colorado River be managed to meet water demands and protect environmental resources in a drier and hotter future? How can salmon be successfully reintroduced in the Columbia River to restore native fish populations and traditional tribal food sources? These are all questions that Environmental Management and Planning Solutions, Inc. (EMPSi) is working with our clients to answer. Together with our team of planners, scientists, economists, and lawyers, you will have opportunities to collaborate and gain experience on a wide variety of exciting and challenging projects on western public lands and across the United States.

EMPSi is a national environmental consulting firm providing a variety of environmental compliance, permitting, and planning services to government agencies, land managers, and private clients. We excel with complex projects, including land use planning for public lands and waters, ecological restoration, and renewable energy and infrastructure development. We invest in our employees through competitive salaries, benefits (medical, dental, vision, retirement, and others), and incentive programs designed to further the professional development of each employee in line with the firm's business goals and needs. The Opportunity

To support our growing repertoire of projects, we are seeking a motivated, organized, and self-sufficient professional Environmental Planner to be based in our Reno, NV, office. This professional will join our interdisciplinary team to support National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) compliance, state-level equivalent reviews, and environmental permitting by writing technical assessments of impacts on the social, natural, and physical environment; supporting public outreach efforts; collecting and organizing data; and contributing to a positive teamwork-oriented company culture. This is largely an office-based role, though travel to public lands and project areas around the west and across the United States may be required depending on client and/or project needs.

The ideal candidate will demonstrate technical expertise in the environmental, social, or physical sciences and experience in contributing to complex environmental studies for land use planning and environmental management. This position requires excellent communication, technical, and writing skills; attention to detail; and the ability to work independently and as a part of an interdisciplinary team. Opportunities for growth include development of client relationships, marketing and business development, and leading interdisciplinary teams on diverse projects. EMPSi invites qualified applicants with a bachelor's degree or higher in the field of environmental science, environmental policy, planning, economics, or an equivalent discipline to apply for the position.

Required qualifications:

- BS/BA degree in the field of environmental science, environmental policy, planning, economics, or an equivalent discipline
- Excellent communication, technical, and writing skills
- Passion for quality work products and attention to detail
- Knowledge of federal environmental laws and their implementing regulations, including, but not limited to: National Environmental Policy Act, Clean Water Act, Clean Air Act, Endangered Species Act, and the National Historic Preservation Act
- Knowledge of current issues and projects related to the Bureau of Land Management, Reclamation, Forest Service, and other federally administered lands
- Excellent organization and time-management
